He is also a Resident Assistant in Bennett Hall. He says, "Thank you all for coming out to support the arts and your local theater! I have been acting since I received my first big role as Santa Claus in my 4th grade Christmas Play. Crazy to think that was 10 years ago... Anyway, thank you to everyone in the audience for being here! Special shout outs to my wonderful family (Mike, Becky, Kelsey, Ryane, TJ, Keaton, Carson) for being my backbone and your constant support. To my Grandmother Linda, my #1 fan who has never missed a show of mine in 10 years. To the Men Of Bennett for being amazing residents. And to all my friends here at school! Thanks for keeping me sane on days I think my might snap! ;p Enjoy the show everyone! #TPP4L"

DIRECTOR'S NOTE

Arsenic and Old Lace is one of the best known and most often produced farces in the American Theatre repertoire for a reason.....it is really funny. It also has an interesting history. When Joseph Kesselring first wrote it he was teaching at Bethel College, a small liberal arts school in Newton, Kansas, and envisioned the play as a heavy drama. He drew on the boarding house he was living in for inspiration for the setting and the story might have been inspired by an actual criminal case in Connecticut where a woman would take in boarders, promise to take care of them and then poison them for their pensions. So how did a play based on an actual murder case and started as a heavy drama in the well-made play style end up as one of the best known comedies of the middle twentieth century? When producers Howard Lindsey and Russell Crouse read the script, they immediately recognized the potential for comedy in the play and, after a struggle, convinced Kesselring to make it into the farce which is so popular today. The play led the opening night critic for The New York Times to write " ...the play was so funny that none of us will ever forget it." and was eventually made into a movie starring Cary Grant . The cast has worked hard to live up to that review and we hope that you leave here having experienced a play that "none of us will ever forget."

Thank you for supporting the Arts
at Saint Joseph's College
